BK building owners charged after fatal fire

Prosecutors are holding the owners of a Bensonhurst building where five tenants died trying to escape a fire last year responsible. Officials say the tenants were trapped because the apartment had been illegally subdivided, and walls that had been illegally erected blocked escape. Vasilios Gerazounis, 68, and his son, Argyrios Gerazounis, 37, were charged with manslaughter.

BK sex assault

Cops are looking for a man who they said sexually assaulted a 15-year-old girl in Brooklyn. Police said that on Thursday, at around 5 p.m. at the Fort Hamilton N subway station, a man approached a 15-year-old girl from behind and sexually assaulted her. He then fled. The man is described as Hispanic, 20 to 25 years old with a mohawk-style haircut.

► Outer-borough cabs will be green.

Pols face off over outer-borough taxis

The clash over outer-borough cabs continues.

Manhattan Borough President Scott Stringer said Thursday that opponents should stop obstructing Mayor Michael Bloomberg's plan for five-borough taxi service.

The plan allows 2,000 livery cars in the outer boroughs to pick up street hails.

"We can no longer treat New Yorkers outside of Manhattan's central business district as second-class citizens," Stringer said. "This lawsuit is bad for New Yorkers."

The new cabs were supposed to hit streets this summer. But earlier this month, a judge issued a temporary restraining order, blocking the city from moving forward after taxicab owners sued.

Public Advocate Bill de Blasio, who supports the lawsuit, criticized Bloomberg in an editorial in the New York Daily News for pushing the legislation to pass in Albany, giving

"legislators from the suburbs and upstate the power to pass New York City-specific laws without our consent."

Councilman Robert Jackson said communities in Northern Manhattan and the outer boroughs desperately need the cab services.

Musical chairs in Bryant Park

BRYANT PARK. Hundreds will gather at Bryant Park on Wednesday, June 20, for what could be a record-breaking game of musical chairs. In order to celebrate the park's 20th anniversary, Bryant Park will be hosting 20 simultaneous games of musical chairs, with 20 players each. Winners will move on to a sudden-death round to potentially win the grand prize of an engraved park chair. The event starts at 8 p.m. Participants must be 18 years old and register in advance online.

Tax break back for New York brewers

NEW YORK. Here's a good reason to drink up this weekend: State legislators restored a tax break for craft brewers after beer-makers, like Brooklyn Brewery, protested that they were going to have to charge customers more for suds. The New York Brewers Association released a statement Thursday praising Gov. Andrew Cuomo, and pointed out that the craft beer industry contributes $200 million to the state's economy. ● METRO/AB

Obama comes to NYC to paint the town blue

► Manhattan a familiar stomping ground for president to raise re-election funds ► Toured WTC, attended fundraiser hosted by Sarah Jessica Parker

President Barack Obama returned to New York City on Thursday night for a trip that was part fundraising cash grab and part World Trade Center tour. The president arrived at the Ground Zero site at 6 p.m., accompanied by Michelle Obama, to tour One World Trade Center.

The president and the first lady signed their names to one of the final steel beams to be added to the tower, which is nearly completed. They were accompanied by Mayor Michael Bloomberg and New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo, as well as New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie.

One World Trade Center, its construction delayed for years, is on track to be the tallest skyscraper in the Western Hemisphere. When finished, the tower will soar to a symbolic 1,776 feet, from the sidewalk to the top of its antenna.

After the World Trade Center tour, the president and the first lady were expected to attend a fundraising bash at the West Village brownstone of Sarah Jessica Parker.

The event, which cost $40,000 per person to attend, was co-hosted by Vogue editrix Anna Wintour. Meryl Streep and Aretha Franklin were rumored to be attending.

One lucky winner who donated as little as $3 online to Obama's re-election campaign was also in attendance. Parker's staff was in overdrive Thursday afternoon, leaving no detail to chance. Workers were spotted hauling in large rugs, stacks of chairs, fresh flowers and even a piano.

After the reception at Parker's home, the Obamas then headed to a fundraising dinner at The Plaza hotel, which featured a performance by Mariah Carey.

Together the fundraisers were expected to rake in $4.5 million for Obama's re-election bid in November.

NYPD seeks Horace Mann information

RIVERDALE. The NYPD is asking any victims of sexual abuse — or anyone with information about possible crimes — at Horace Mann School to come forward.

The police department issued a statement Thursday asking anyone with information, regardless of how old, "about inappropriate sexual contact by adults" at the school to contact the NYPD's Special Victim's Division at (646) 610-7272. The department promised that calls would be strictly confidential.

Earlier this month, The New York Times reported allegations of horrific sexual abuse at the school, with multiple students alleging that three different teachers sexually abused them. The reported incidences ranged from 1970s to the 1990s. The prep school, located in Riverdale, is regarded as one of the most prestigious in the city. ● METRO/AB

10th teacher arrested for sex abuse

HARLEM. A teacher was arrested for allegedly sexually assaulting an 8-year-old girl. Rafael Sosa, a third-grade teacher at PS 208, was arrested Wednesday. Police said Sosa, 29, abused the girl on several occasions. He is the 10th teacher to be arrested on sex abuse charges so far this year.

Teens too young to tan? Albany considering law

▶ Gov. Andrew Cuomo is expected to sign the proposed teen tanning bill into law.

Only weeks after an alarmingly tan New Jersey woman made national headlines after she was accused of taking her young daughter tanning, legislators here in New York are now working on a bill to ban children 16 and younger from using indoor tanning beds.

Right now, indoor tanning is prohibited to children under 14 in New York state, but 14- to 17-year-olds can tan if they have parental permission. Should this legislation become law, tanning would be banned entirely for those under 16, even if their parents are OK with it.

The bill would also require 17-year-olds to get parental permission.

"Skin cancer is a very insidious and painful thing," said Long Island Assemblyman Harvey Weisenberg, who helped push the bill. "(Tanning) is becoming a popular thing for kids in school and we have to make them aware of the dangers."

The American Cancer Society cites exposure to ultraviolet light as a major risk factor for melanoma of the skin. Tanning booth operators counter that indoor tanning can be safe and healthy if used properly.

Nutley, N.J., mom Patricia Krentcil is currently facing a second-degree child endangerment charge after her then-5-year-old daughter showed up to school with a bad sunburn. The child told school officials she got it after her mom took her to a tanning booth.

Krentcil maintains that her daughter got burned when playing in a kiddie pool on a sunny day.

When asked if Krentcil's story helped inspire the tanning bill, Weisenberg demurred.

"No, I think that showed how (tanning) can disfigure you but it didn't show how it can kill you," said Weisenberg.

Meanwhile Ashley Engelman, a spokeswoman from the American Cancer Society, suggested otherwise.

"I think it's safe to say that the story helped generate attention to the dangers of indoor tanning," said Engelman.

2.3M

According to The Skin Cancer Foundation, 2.3 million teens tan indoors in the United States each year.

Permission to pierce

NEW YORK. It's not just tanning beds.

Legislators both here in New York City and in Albany also want to restrict teenagers' access to getting a nose ring, a lip ring or even a belly button ring.

New legislation proposed on Wednesday before the City Council would require minors in the five boroughs to get consent from their parents before they get those types of piercings.

The proposition to set an age requirement for body piercings was introduced by Councilman Peter Vallone. The Queens Councilman said he wants to make the laws for getting a piercing similar to those for getting a tattoo, which underage teens need a parental consent form to do.

"Minors can't see certain movies without their parents, but for some reason they are allowed to pay a stranger to put a hole in their tongue," said Vallone. "That's nuts and needs to be changed."

A bill similar to Vallone's was also proposed in the New York state Assembly by Queens Assemblyman Mike Simanowitz. His bill easily passed the Assembly on Wednesday and a similar bill is before the Senate.

Currently minors do not need any permission to receive a body piercing in New York. Vallone said he was concerned about the health effects of getting piercings.

Obama, Romney have economy swords drawn

SAMAD/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

► Barack Obama speaks on the economy during a campaign event at the Cuyahoga Community College in Cleveland, Ohio, on Thursday.

President Barack Obama cast his re-election battle with Mitt Romney as a clash between starkly contrasting philosophies and charged that his Republican rival would hollow out the middle class in a high-stakes speech on Thursday that could set the tone for months of intense campaigning.

Standing at a podium that bore the motto “Forward,” Obama accused Romney of wanting to resurrect the Republican economic policies that preceded the 2008 crisis that plunged the United States into a recession from which it has not fully recovered.

“We can’t afford to jeopardize the future by repeating the mistakes of the past. Not now, not when we’ve got so much at stake,” Obama told a crowd of 1,500 at a community college in the battleground state of Ohio.

On a day when both candidates for the Nov. 6 presidential election spoke in Ohio, Romney struck first in a speech that ended four minutes before Obama took the stage.

“He’s been president for three and a half years. And talk is cheap, actions speak very loud. If you want to see the results of his economic policies, look around Ohio, look around the country,” Romney said at Seilkop Industries, a Cincinnati manufacturer.

Obama is coming off the roughest stretch of his presidency since last summer’s debt-ceiling showdown and his Democratic allies worry that he could lose the election if it is simply a referendum on his efforts to boost the shaky economy. REUTERS

Two more witnesses detail abuse by Sandusky

Two more men testified in Jerry Sandusky’s child sex abuse trial about being molested by the former Penn State assistant football coach, and a university campus detective on Thursday recalled Sandusky saying “I wish I were dead” after being confronted by an alleged victim’s mother about showering with her son.

Prosecutors moved toward wrapping up their case in the closely watched trial in Pennsylvania. Judge John Cleland told jurors before breaking for lunch at the Centre County Court in Pennsylvania that prosecutors, who began presenting evidence on Monday, could conclude their case by Thursday afternoon.

The trial is taking place amid a heavy media presence in the small town of Bellefonte, about 10 miles from Penn State’s main campus. REUTERS

Allen Stanford gets 110 years in Ponzi fraud

Allen Stanford, the former Texas billionaire convicted of running a $7 billion Ponzi scheme, was sentenced to 110 years in prison on Thursday.

Stanford was convicted of 13 charges including fraud and conspiracy by a jury in March for using fraudulent certificates of deposit sold by his offshore bank in Antigua to bilk thousands of investors out of their savings.

Bernie Madoff was sentenced to 150 years after pleading guilty to running a Ponzi scheme. REUTERS

► To hear more with Ice-T, download the June edition of the Metro Monthly Music Podcast for free, available at www.metro.us/mixtape and on iTunes.

Q&A

Would you have ever shared these memories with other MCs when you were coming up? Or would that be a sign of the weakness you mentioned?

You know, we always chop it up like that together. ... You saw the Eminem I know, not the Eminem on the records. ... We have a lot of respect in hip-hop. The rappers know who's who. It ain't just because there's a camera there; I got to capture my friends as I know they are, and I know they're all cool. I know the way Rakim is and I know how Kanye will be. If you say, "Go rhyme," he'll go crazy.

And he really did!

I know! He was like, "I'm in Ice's movie, and they wanna see me spit" and to me ... when you watch Kanye, it's like you're watching Jimi Hendrix in a solo. All of a sudden he's just in one of his runs and you can't stop. We kept the camera running and you know, if you mess up a word, it doesn't matter, because where the hell are you pulling these words from anyway? [Laughs]

Hip-hop is reaching an age where more and more of its most high-profile practitioners never knew a time when it did not exist. That's one of the reasons that Ice-T felt compelled to make "Something from Nothing: The Art of Rap." For his directorial debut, which opens Friday, he rounded up 38 rap legends to document an oral history of the genre's birth and growth. Through this method he unveils the creative process of an art form that is not often enough given the cultural credit it deserves.

"This film isn't about the money, the cars, the jewelry, the girls," he says at the beginning of the movie. "This film is about the craft, what it takes to write a rap, what goes on inside the heads of the masters."

It feels like this movie couldn't have been made at any other time. Most of the originators are still alive and vibrant, but they're not so entrenched in the game that they're above being nostalgic.

When you get to the point where hip-hop is old enough that people can look back at it and reflect, it's much better than catching it in the moment, because when you catch an artist in the moment, there's no mistakes. Everything is right, everything is on point, there's no weakness. I think that when you get older you've been through it, you have humility and you can laugh at it. At the end of the movie, you see all of the RIPs we put on there. ... This has been around long enough that we've lost many, many rappers. I wanted to catch this now.

It seems now like we're seeing the emergence of the first MCs to be born into hip-hop, whereas all of the people in the movie saw the beginning of it.

Yeah, and you know there will be a Part Two [to this movie]. I don't know if I'll do it. The next generation will write their legacy down. It wasn't time for me to go out and really start the movie with the new artists. I have to start it where I started, and my trek was that I was an L.A. rapper and I moved to New York and New York kind of put me in the game, and they told me that this requires skills. They also taught me you've got to respect it. They said, "If we're going to let you into hip-hop and we're going to give you the cosign, Ice-T, never turn your back on it, never disrespect this, because this is something that's serious." I try to do this with the film.

The film does have a serious and reverential tone, but there are also times when you're laughing at yourself, reminiscing about even the name of your first crew, which I'll have to remind readers was called the Eliminators

Pimpin' Association.

[Laughs] The funny thing about that is that us — me and Lord Jama — we're naming off who we were before you ever heard of Ice-T. I was saying those rhymes before I even knew about rap, we were just the Eliminators Pimpin' Association, trying to talk some s—, and he was Kid Magic.

Do you have a lot of old rhymes that you're able to laugh at?

The rhymes I used to say, I would say them for the gang members, and it was like a form of what they called toasting back in the day. You say a rhyme and they would be entertained, and there was no music. And when I first heard the music, I was like, "I can do that! I'm already doing that!"

WARNER BROS. PICTURES

'Rock of Ages'*Director: Adam ShankmanCast: Tom Cruise, Alec Baldwin, Julianne HoughRating: PG-13Grade: 00333

Borrowed from Broadway, "Rock of Ages" takes the '80s hair-band musical and turns it into a celebrity sing-along that's as shallow as Poison lyrics. Assembled by Adam Shankman ("Hairspray") and featuring the likes of Tom Cruise (who can sing!) and Alec Baldwin (who can't), it wedges in a pencil-thin romance between two struggling singers in the L.A. club scene. It aims to be nothin' but a good time, but when Cruise isn't strutting around imitating Axl Rose, the story is banal. STEVE GOW

Nothin' but a good time

► The team on hair metal-musical 'Rock of Ages' remembers 1987

While breakout star Diego Boneta wasn't even born yet in 1987, when "Rock of Ages" takes place, his colleagues certainly have some memories of what the world was like 25 years ago.

Actress Malin Akerman:

My mom was an aerobics instructor, and she liked to go out dancing, so I would always remember her in her outfits and I was always pinning after her like, "I wish I could be her, I wish I could wear those outfits." She'd wear her tight blue spandex pants and her big hair and red nails. I always wanted to perm my hair back then, but my mom wouldn't let me. So I finally got to live that dream out in this movie. But back then, I don't know about you but I was wearing the horrible fluorescent T-shirts [and] acid-wash jeans. It was really, really ugly. I like the '80s, though. I think it's pretty sexy with girls in high jeans and the rock T-shirts or leather — anything leather is always great.

Screenwriter Justin Theroux:

Oh, man. Endless frustration with girls. In '87 I was 15, I guess. I remember hairspray and lots of Dippity-do. My first record was "Dirty Deeds Done Dirt Cheap" by AC/DC. In the same way when I was in my 20s there was that weird '70s nostalgia when bellbottoms came back in, there's kind of a similar thing with the '80s now. To me, the '80s were just kind of fun memories because nothing's really gone wrong yet in your life, so all the music is very nostalgic for me, too.

► Justin Theroux rocks on.

Director Adam Shankman:

In 1987, I was actually in New York. I had just dropped out of school. I was a waiter working at El Rio Grande on Third Avenue. I was starting to do musical theater. I was going to a lot of clubs — I was going to Danceteria, the Palladium, Area at the end of the Area years. I was a little more suspenders-and-skinny-tie guy. It was horrifying. I freely admit to the ugliness of it.

Off the cuff

► Indie film 'Your Sister's Sister' gives its stars a chance to improvise ► Why believably awkward is always better than smooth and savvy

For writer and director Lynn Shelton's latest, "Your Sister's Sister," she enlisted the help of stars Emily Blunt, Mark Duplass and Rosemarie DeWitt — and gave them all creative consultant credits on the heavily improvised project, about a pair of estranged sisters (Blunt and DeWitt) and a male pal (Duplass) stuck in a mourning-fueled emotional ditch. Shot for a scant $80,000 in 12 days on an island outside Seattle, the picture was a bonding experience for the four of them, to put it mildly.

"My No. 1 guidepost when I'm making these films is believability," Shelton says. "I want to create characters who you really believe in, who feel real and resonate. I really want you to recognize the people onscreen and have them be fully human and therefore fully flawed because we're all cracked vessels."

Duplass, who has developed quite the roster of flawed characters in films like Shelton's "Hump Day" and his own projects with his brother, sees an odd appeal to the less-than-perfect.

"It's great that you have people identifying with sort of morally and ethically questionable protagonists in this film," he says. "They're very human, they're very flawed, but hopefully what we've done is provided in-roads to them so you can identify with those flaws in a way."

Part of keeping things real meant letting English actress Blunt depict her character as

Improv Preferred

Duplass found 'Sister' to offer a refreshing change from the typical Hollywood style.

► "Sometimes in those movies where you have these quote-unquote complex relationships, I find that characters are all behaving pretty well and perfectly, and these characters in this movie are much more like me," he says. "They have many more moments of social awkwardness and missing the mark quite often — and good intentions at times but really just f—ing up, you know?"

English, and Shelton says there was little question in her mind on the matter. "I didn't want her to have to worry about that when she was improvising, because improvising was going to be hard enough," Shelton says.

For Blunt, though, there was more to it than just having one less thing to worry about. "I think the character of Iris kind of lent itself more to being a British person just because she's not very good at talking about emotions and feelings," Blunt says. "She procrastinates and is self-deprecating and all of those things, so I think it kind of lent itself more to my kind of humor and the way I probably was. I feel like Iris was me eight years ago. It's weird."

'That's My Boy'

Director: Sean Anders
Cast: Adam Sandler, Andy Samberg
Rating: R
Grade: D+D+D+

What can you say about a movie that tries to resurrect Vanilla Ice's career and almost succeeds? You may call it performance art, but that would only be accurate if someone actually performed in this pastiche. It's hard to tell what was more irritating: Sandler's sketch acting style, Andy Samberg's unfunny, wussy role, the pedophilia and incest motifs or the desperate, forced "edginess" of the movie. But like a train wreck, you can't look away.

► So dopey together

Would this movie be more palatable if Sandler dropped the grating accent? What if they recast the role with Steve Carell in the lead? It would still smell. The whole movie is dripping in '80s and '90s nostalgia — probably the decades when Sandler's comedy made most sense.

Somewhere only Keane know

In the years since the release of their 2004 debut, "Hopes and Fears," with its massive crossover hits "Somewhere Only We Know" and "Everybody's Changing," it's become easy to point to what you might call the Keane sound: Plaintive piano pop, melodramatic ballads reaching for the cheap seats and more often than not, landing. You might also call it middling dreck, depending on your taste. But their past two releases, 2010's "Night Train" EP, and 2008's "Perfect Symmetry," were slight detours for the U.K. hit-makers, with the former experimenting with more complex rhythms and percussion, and the latter leaning into a careening new wave and synth-driven pop-funk synths.

This year's "Strangeland," ► Keane are keen to make some daring fashion choices.

which came out last month and became the band's fifth No. 1 album, is something of a return to form. It has a relatively stripped-down sound: Romantic piano ballads and heart-on-sleeve crooning characterized by singles like the pleading, pretty "Silenced By the Night."

"I think we definitely went on a bit of a journey with 'Perfect Symmetry' and 'Night Train,' and that was fun and exciting, but I sort of felt as a writer that I was missing something by the end of that process," songwriter and pianist Tim Rice-Oxley explains.

In the interim he worked on a side project with Keane bassist Jesse Quin called Mt. Desolation. "It had more of a country vibe," he says. "The songs I wrote were much more

Familiar 'Strangeland'

The album was recorded at Rice-Oxley's own studio, which provided plenty of time for trial and error: He wrote some 80-90 songs before winnowing it down. The return to the rural was beneficial for his process, he says. "I just moved back down to the countryside a couple of years ago near where we grew up. It's a lovely little town, rural and tucked away, isolated from all the hubbub of the music business and everything else. It's good for us to be able to hunker down, be a gang, and not be distracted. I find it important to lock myself away and really focus on stuff."

emotional. I found it satisfying, and wanted to reconnect with that kind of writing."

The latest Keane album, he says, was an attempt to "get in touch with something directly emotional without being sort of arty and obtuse."

► Checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Today, Rihanna wants to clear something up, Joel McHale is impressed, David Lynch is about to get Twitter trolled and Elizabeth Banks is worried about a colleague.

@Rihanna
 Nonsense! I'm not sick! I pushed my trip to London back to go spend time with my family! Sorry kiddos

@joelmchale
 During my flight back the 12 yr old girl sitting in front of me watched the original "The Thing" from 1951. I'm in awe of her cool.

@DAVID_LYNCH
 Dear Twitter Friends, in your opinion, is America a good country or a bad country? Is America changing for the better or the worse?

@ElizabethBanks
 Is everybody as bummed as me that John Malkovich's best friend seems to be Siri?

Rihanna

THE WORD

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

Ladies, this is unbecoming

► Chris Brown has a scrape on his face.

► But Drake may not have caused it.

At first, things seemed pretty nice and tidy with the Chris Brown and Drake brawl that broke out early Thursday morning at Manhattan nightclub W.i.P. Both hip-hop stars have dated Rihanna in the past, both have a habit of gossiping in pop songs, and one has a history of anger management problems: Case closed.

But now, Drake's people are telling TMZ that the rapper wasn't responsible for the gash on Brown's face that popped up on Instagram Thursday morning. "Drake did not participate in any wrongdoing of any kind," his rep tells the site. "He was on his way out of the club when the altercation began."

Another source claims that Philly rapper Meek Mill was the one with the problem, and hit Brown with a bottle after a shouting match. No arrests were made, and all of the bold-face names were gone by the time police arrived.

Brown, for one, seems to back up at least the bottle part. His Twitter feed has since been airbrushed by publicists, but at one point after the incident it read, "How u party wit rich n* that hate? Lol... Throwing bottles like girls? #shame-onyla!"

Well, someone is certainly getting left out of the Cheesecake Factory shopping trip this weekend. As soon as a catty note surfaces on the bathroom wall, we're going to call it: Lamest hip-hop fight ever.

Josh Duhamel knows the way to our heart

After his beloved rescue pup Meatloaf passed away, Josh Duhamel — also known as Mr. Fergie — is working with PetSmart Charities to promote pet adoption.

"[Meatloaf] was so appreciative of us and giving him a home," Duhamel tells UsMagazine.com. The actor now tells everyone to adopt "not because it's the right thing to do, but because they truly make the best pets."

But before they adopt another friend for their other dog, Zoe, the couple is hoping to add a baby to the family.

"We're going to focus on a human first," says the actor. "We're going to focus on raising a human and then maybe we'll get a dog after that."

Your call, Josh. But you know who will never, ever thank you for giving them a home? A 14-year-old human.

Name dropping hall of fame

By now, Hugh Jackman is used to being mobbed by fans, but his 12-year-old son, Max, doesn't always appreciate it. "He doesn't like when people come up to me on the street. He would much prefer if nobody knew who I was," the actor tells Parade.com "Although, I've seen him in social situations when he didn't think I was listening, and he once said to a girl, 'Well, my dad is Wolverine.' So when it came to try to talk to this girl, apparently it came in handy!"

Not bad at all, kid. The only thing we'd possibly rather hear is "My dad is Tyler Durden."

Talking points

Gyllenhaal has time, ladies

Jake Gyllenhaal is nothing if not persistent. Though Minka Kelly reportedly turned him down flat when he asked her out last fall, the pair apparently did eventually go out a few times recently, according to Us Weekly. "Minka wasn't into Jake when he first pursued her," a source says, explaining that the actress "decided to give Jake another chance" after her romance with Wilmer Valderrama fizzled out. But it looks like things between Gyllenhaal and Kelly didn't last, either: "It was never serious, and it's over now," the source says.

► Gyllenhaal

Johansson is too sexy for her art

Scarlett Johansson gets a lot of attention for her beauty, but it's not something she's exactly thrilled about. "I don't like being labeled as 'the sexiest woman alive.' As an actress I prefer to maintain the anonymity," Johansson says in an interview with Grazia Italia. And as for being a role model for other women? She'd rather not. "There are so many wonderful women out there," Johansson says.

Cox and Arquette playing nice

In possibly the most amicable split in Hollywood history, Courtney Cox reportedly filed her divorce paper the same day as soon-to-be ex-husband David Arquette, also citing irreconcilable differences, according to TMZ. Like Arquette, Cox is seeking joint custody of their daughter and no spousal support, and she will represent herself in the proceedings. The biggest discovery is that the couple, married for 11 years before separating in 2010, did not have a prenup, so all of their community property will be divided equally. Cox is worth a reported $75 million, while Arquette is said to be worth $18 million.

There are no jokes on the high road

It's been a rough week for Lindsay Lohan, what with crashing her Porsche and allegedly lying to police about whether or not she was behind the wheel. And her dad, Michael Lohan, thinks everyone is ganging up on her unfairly. "Why doesn't the press emphasize that she went through an extremely traumatic accident that could have been fatal, but she still wants to prove herself and went back to work even against medical advice?" Michael tells Hollyscoop. As to how Lindsay is recovering, Michael says she is "still in some pain, but really well otherwise."

Ice-T and A for your weekend

As much as we love when photos of Coco surface, there isn't usually a good reason to share them with you — other than the obvious, of course. But now that Ice-T's documentary is hitting theaters this weekend, we bring you the best of his very curvy better half.

1. Eat your heart out, Angelina: Coco was rocking the ultimate slit back in 2006.

2. Let's just say Coco isn't one to hide from the Miami beach paparazzi. She gave them a little show in November.

3. Did you think she was going to go with a demure Vera Wang? Coco let it all hang out when she renewed her vows to Ice-T last year.

4. Ice-T, Seal and Coco dressed way up for Heidi Klum's 2010 Halloween party.

5. There's no shortage of these shots to choose from over the years, but we love that Coco was happy to point out the obvious in April.

also takes on David Page's percussive score for Stephen Page's mystical "Warumuk — in the dark night," including songs from North East Arnhem Land.

But Graeme Murphy's 2002 "Swan Lake," on display this weekend, uncovers the true heart of the Melbourne-based company. Collaborating with Janet Vernon, Murphy takes the Tchaikovsky classic and sets it on 20th-century British royals. Odette, a Diana-like figure, is driven mad by the fact that her prince, even at their wedding, can't keep his eyes off his true love, Baroness von Rothbart. A veiled allusion to Camilla, she combines aspects of sorcerer and Black Swan; the lake of the title sits on the grounds of a psychiatric hospital.

Kristian Fredrikson's designs for "Swan Lake" are sleek and seductive, and the dancers are terrific. Madeleine Eastoe and Amber Scott alternate in the role of Odette, and Kevin Jackson and Adam Bull take turns as the faithless Prince Siegfried; Lana Jones and Lucinda Dunn share the part of the Baroness.

'BANG! BANG!' YOU'RE HILARIOUS

► Comedy vet Scott Aukerman talks 'Comedy Bang! Bang!' ► Other talk shows, beware — he'll fight you

IFC found something funny in its basement: Scott Aukerman. Accompanied by comedian/musician Reggie Watts, Aukerman — a comedy icon with credits including "Mr. Show" and the popular Earwolf comedy podcasts — acts as giddy impresario on his new TV show, "Comedy Bang! Bang!". Aukerman invited Metro into his weird and hilarious world. We barely made it out alive.

What opportunities are you excited to access now, as you move from the podcast to the TV show? What's new?

Well, you know, I'm finally a celebrity. When you're a celebrity — and this is something people don't know — but it's a lot like becoming the president. The Celebrity Secret Service takes you aside and lets you know all of the state secrets: what's in Area 51, who killed JFK.

Ooh! What is in Area 51?

Well, I can't tell you, you're not a celebrity. That's the thing, the Celebrity Promise, that we'll never tell noncelebrities. I'm just excited for people to see the show. I've been working on it for so long and I'm really proud of it. Fans of the podcast shouldn't come in expecting it to be exactly the same. It's like the Avengers movie. By all accounts, that started as a comic book.

Get out of here! Is that one of those celebrity secrets?

No, no. And before that, it was cave paintings, and cavemen would tell each other stories about Batman. But anyway, I think it would be really boring for the Avengers movie to have just been pointing a camera at someone reading a comic book out loud. It's the same with my show — it's very visual. It's inspired by the podcast, but I don't think you really need to know what a podcast is or know my show at all to enjoy it. I made it for everyone.

Is it hard to visually translate characters from the podcast?

It's just being confident about the choices we make. It's more of a process of working with each of the comedians and seeing what they want to do, and hopefully the audience will come along with it. Like Paul F. Tompkins had very specific ideas about how he wanted to look like Andrew Lloyd Webber, which is apparently not at all! People are fine with it. The less hard you try in that regard, the easier it is for people to laugh.

You learned that on "Mr. Show?"

Well, I think that just being silly is what I really respond to. Be silly, move quickly.

Do you call this a talk show?

I think it's a talk show. In "real" talk shows, the host always knows what the guest is going to say. So, my show is more real than all of those shows. I will fight any talk show!

WEEKEND, JUNE 15-17, 2012

▶ Have burning questions for Emeril? He'll be hosting his Grilling Survival Facebook hotline on June 28 between 3 and 4 p.m. Eastern time at www.facebook.com/emerglgrilling.

Emeril fixes your grilling hangups

Ah, barbecue season! The days are longer, the fireflies are twinkling and the grill is raring to go. But if the thought of going anywhere near a propane tank sends you shivers colder than an ice cream cone, fear not: Emeril Lagasse, star chef, restaurateur and cookbook author, is here to help. He outlined the mistakes grillers make and how to avoid them.

juices out of it."

▶ Layering your burger the wrong way: When Julia Child came on Lagasse's show, she gave him a lesson in burger prep that he now passes on. "If the burger doesn't touch one part of the bun, then the burger's gonna slide," he says. "What a lot of people do is put lettuce, tomato, and then they put the burger, and then they dress the other side of the bun and, then they put the onion on top of that, and they put the bun on it, so the meat really doesn't have any friction. You take a bite and it's almost in your lap. Julia explained to me that one part of the burger has to touch the bun and then you can build it from there."

▶ Grilling fish wrong: "The biggest mistake that people make is that the grill is too hot. It should be more like depending on what type of fish — steak or more of a filet," says the chef, who recommends a fish spatula for handling the delicate protein. And before you even fire up the grill, let your fish settle as you would meat. "Take your protein out of the refrigerator for at least 20 minutes, and let it just come up to room temperature. Then, brushing it with oil on both sides and then seasoning it is the key."

meredith.engel@metro.us

▶ Not having enough fat on your meat: "You have to have a good percentage of fat," Lagasse says. "You've gotta have at least 10 to 15 percent fat or it's not gonna be great."

▶ Not letting your meat settle: "We season ground meat and we overwork it. We never let the air come out of it and let it rest. Immediately after we overwork it we just put them right on the grill and we wonder, what happened to this burger? If you season it the night before and then take the meat out, let it get to room temperature, then shape it into burgers, then put them on the grill, it makes a huge difference."

WHO DECIDES WHAT IS RIGHT AND WRONG??

"Not everyone who says to Me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of My Father in Heaven..." Matthew 7:21

Moral issues are debated in social, religious and political settings. Who decides what is right and wrong? The president, the church, the majority, the individual. None of the above — if God exists, has spoken and holds people accountable. If you want to know what is right, don't ask for my opinion, look in the word of God. Teach and do the word!

Can we acknowledge sad Olympics past?

It will be exactly 40 years since the massacre of Israeli athletes during the Olympic Games, but still the Olympic Committee refuses to devote one minute of silence to their memories. That is quite disgusting, and with the inclusion of one minute of silence in the 2012 Olympics, that disgraceful disregard of murder during the world's most peaceful international activity will finally end — but only if you raise your voice to make it a reality. Please do.

DAVID KRONFELD, NEW YORK

They want to steal all that we've got

RE: "TITLING ENTITLEMENT": I see Sam Khoury is back in the letters, and he again lies about the plans of the Republicans. They always talk of Social Security as an entitlement program and they want to cut it now, even though it can pay full benefits for 25-plus years. It is most certainly part of the safety net, as it pays survivor and disability benefits. And forget waste — they want to stop us from drawing down the $3 trillion dollars we have loaned the government from our FICA payments, all of which went to pay for tax cuts to the rich and for wars against brown people. They've got our money, and they intend to keep it. KEVIN DOWD, VIA E-MAIL

Capitalism not to blame — or is it?

It is unfortunate, and probably deliberate, that jobs are being sent overseas by U.S. corporations. But it is useless to blame capitalism. Our economic system has given the most to our citizens as compared to any other system, especially socialism. Perhaps leftists would be happier in communist North Korea or maybe in a place like Jonestown where that socialist monster Jim Jones snuffed out 900 lives with his Marxism. Is this what leftists want? If so, maybe I can help them with the plane fare. FRANK ST. GEORGE, EAST ROCKAWAY

Kelly Donnoe once again speaks of what I can only assume is another universe since it doesn't come close to matching the real facts. First off: Over the past few decades we have seen massive increases in American employee productivity, yet no increase in wages. Second: All the profit made from that increased productivity has gone right to CEOs and other top business executives in order to "retain the talent" that is solely responsible for massive losses, companies crumbling, billions in fraud and generally the destruction of the American economy and dream. Third: When 98 percent of a country lives in poverty the country lacks something needed for a strong economy — something called disposable income, which allows people to buy the products companies make, which is how a company makes profit. So Kelly Donnoe I would suggest you not only take an economics class, but you need to get up to speed on the facts of this universe, since we have seen for decades and especially recently that unions have been in decline — and with them, the size of the American middle class into poverty. Furthermore, during this decline the amount of money unions could pour into politics was dwarfed by business even before the Citizens United case. DOUGLAS P BROWN II, VIA E-MAIL

Solution to Thursday's crossword

How to play Sudoku: Fill in the grid so that every row, every column and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1-9. There is no math involved. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic.

Horoscope

II Gemini May 21-June 20. Your instincts for spotting conditions that could produce gains for you are sharper than usual. You might not make a killing, but the more you find, the more it'll add up.

☿ Cancer June 21-July 22. Having marvelous leadership qualities allows you to quickly instill optimism and enthusiasm in others. You shouldn't have any trouble getting all working for a common cause.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Although you may be a topic of discussion among your friends, there's no reason to be disturbed. If you could hear what they're saying, you'd be flattered.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. One secret to success is to give others what you desire, which would be a good course for you today. You've heard it before: If you want friends, be friendly. If you need help, aid others.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Something unusual might transpire that will be of enormous importance to you but not necessarily to anybody else — but don't let that stop you. You'll recognize it for its worth.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Bonds can be strengthened if you allow your companions the same freedom of expression that you expect from them. This simple rule has multiple benefits.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Some of the time you spend with friends should be devoted to them instead of to you and your interests. If you make your friends feel important, they'll repay you in kind.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. In order to do something successfully, you must first convince yourself that you're capable of it. Your limitations will only be as strong as you allow them to be.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. A pending project can easily be concluded to your satisfaction if and when you develop a plan to do so. For positive results, utilize all of your bright ideas.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. If you want to go out on the town with friends tonight, don't wait until the last minute. Contact your pals as early as possible to make the arrangements, before they have a chance to make other plans.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Don't grab the first item you see when shopping without first comparing prices and quality. Those small differences between one item and another could quickly add up.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. You're endowed with a winning combination of sound ideas and plenty of energy, but things won't just happen to you by chance. Have a game plan in hand. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Best in the NFL?

Jets head coach Rex Ryan made some waves on Wednesday when he said he thought this fall's defense could be as good as the 2009 team that finished first in the NFL in total defense and scoring defense. "That defense really came together, but I don't see any reason why it can't be that good," Ryan said.

Ryan's charges were a little more restrained on Thursday. "We have to play up to the level that we are capable of," Antonio Cromartie said. "We are just going out and doing the simple things right now, just trying to put all of the pieces together." "It's a very high bar. But this is New York, there's a lot of expectations and it's a tough crowd," David Harris said.

TOO MUCH TEBOW

► ESPN's Bruschi critical of Tebow talking to media ► QB: 'I just do what I'm told' ► Backup continues to steal spotlight from starter at minicamp

Former New England Patriot and current ESPN analyst Tedy Bruschi may want Jets quarterback Tim Tebow to simmer down, but that doesn't appear likely to happen any time soon.

Earlier this week on ESPN's "NFL 32," Bruschi told Tebow to "Stop talking to the media so much" and that he only wanted to hear from quarterback Mark Sanchez, the Jets starter.

Since being traded to New York in mid-March, Tebow has been the most visible player on the Jets' roster even as the coaching staff has consistently said he's the team's backup quarterback.

True to form, Tebow chose not to weigh in on Bruschi's comments, instead taking the high road on Wednesday.

"To be honest, I just do what I'm told. I'm told on this day to talk to you so I'm going to talk to you. And to be honest, I just go about it however the Jets set it up — the rules that they want us to follow, who they want us to talk to, who they don't want us to talk to," Tebow said. "I don't get paid enough to make all those decisions. I just do what I'm told and try to do the best I can."

By contract, Tebow is required to regularly be available to the media for comments and since his arrival at the Jets he has generally spoken at least once a week during OTAs — most recently on Wednesday.

During this week of minicamp, Sanchez spoke to the media on Wednesday — the same day as Tebow — and backups Greg McElroy and Matt Simms both fulfilled interview requests at their lockers.

"I don't know that I'm out there talking," Tebow said. "I'm here talking to ya'll because that's what they want."

NBA. Nets

► Wallace averaged 15.2 points, 6.8 rebounds and 3.1 assists per game for the Nets.

ROCKY WIDNER/NBAE/GETTY IMAGES

Were those 16 games worth it, Brooklyn?

According to reports, Nets forward Gerald Wallace has opted out of the final year of his contract and will now be an unrestricted free agent. Wallace would have made $9.5 million next season, but said in the past he wanted a long-term deal. He could still sign with the Nets, of course, but the team surrendered the No. 6 overall pick for Wallace with 16 games left in the season. The team went 6-10 with Wallace. Guard Deron Williams will likely opt out as well. ● METRO

Wilson stepping into hole vacated by Jacobs

The Giants wrapped up their spring portion of offseason workouts on Thursday and left feeling pretty good about their chances of defending the title.

But they are still left with questions about what to do with their overturned running back situation.

Sixth-year veteran Ahmad Bradshaw is still there — and ready to assume a larger role sans Brandon Jacobs — but after him there's very little certainty on the depth chart. Bradshaw is recovering from a stem cell procedure on his foot in February, but said he fully expects to be ready for training camp come July 26.

"I just want to take it slow [and] just see how my foot reacts to a lot of pounding," Bradshaw said, adding he has no further plans to see any doctors during the break.

While Bradshaw prepares to be a starter, the Giants' offensive staff have the task of finding a suitable backup. Smart money right now is on first-round pick David Wilson, who has impressed with his quick study and freakish athletic ability.

"I don't know if we've seen quite the darting, the explosiveness in short bursts that we've seen with him," offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride said. "That's kind of exciting to see."

For now, Wilson is working on his pass protection to fully earn the trust of his team.

"They know that I know what I have to do. It's not a mystery and something I just found out [because] I knew this since draft day," Wilson said when asked how he's adjusting to pro football's blitz schemes. "They tell me point-blank this is the blocking scheme and this is what I need to do. I can do it. I just need to show it during my reps."

PUBLISHERS NOTE

All real estate advertising herein is subject to the Federal Fair Housing Act of 1968 and state and local fair housing laws. The Fair Housing Act makes it illegal to advertise any preference, limitations or discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin or an intention to make any such preference, limitation or discrimination. State or local laws may make unlawful advertising that discriminates on the basis of age, marital status, or sexual orientation. Metro U.S. will not knowingly accept any advertising for real estate which violates the law. The law requires that all dwellings advertised are available on an equal opportunity basis. If you have any questions regarding housing discrimination, call the Long Island Housing Services at (800) 660-6920 in Long Island or the Anti-Discrimination Center at (212) 346-7600 in New York City. To file a complaint call HUD toll-free at (800) 669-9777 or the New York City Commission on Human Rights at (212) 306-7500.

TEENS – Get the facts on taking care of your sexual health

Preventing a pregnancy or sexually transmitted disease

THE TWO BEST WAYS TO PROTECT YOURSELF ARE TO: 1) not have sex or to 2) use a CONDOM every time you have sex + BIRTH CONTROL if you are at risk for pregnancy

FOR YOUNG MEN:

Always use a condom to prevent pregnancy and STDs, including HIV.

- Use a condom every time you have sex, even when your partner is using another birth control method.
- Make sure you know how to use a condom before you have sex. To find out how, go to nyc.gov, keyword: “condom” or go to www.facebook.com/nyccondom.

FOR YOUNG WOMEN:

Hormonal birth control methods are safe and, when used correctly, almost 100% effective in preventing pregnancy. Hormonal options include:

- Birth control pills (“The Pill”)
- Patch (Ortho-Evra)
- Vaginal ring (NuvaRing)
- Injection you get every three months (Depo-Provera)
- Implant that lasts up to three years (Implanon)
- IUD (intrauterine device) that works for up to five years (Mirena). (A non-hormonal, copper IUD, ParaGard, works for up to 10 years.)

Make sure your partner uses a condom, too, to prevent STDs, including HIV.

Emergency contraception (EC), known as the “morning-after pill,” prevents pregnancy after unprotected sex or if a condom breaks but you have to act fast!

- EC works best when taken as soon as possible after unprotected sex; it works within five days after unprotected sex.
- Teens can get EC free at some health centers or with a prescription that can be filled at a pharmacy. If you’re 17 or older, you can also buy it over the counter at a pharmacy.

YOU HAVE THE RIGHT

It’s your choice whether or not you have sex.

No one — not even a boyfriend or girlfriend — has the right to pressure or force you to have sex. Almost half of all teens wait until they leave high school before having sex. Even if you’ve had sex before, you can always change your mind and say no.

Teens in New York State have the right to get sexual health services on their own without the permission or knowledge of parents, guardians, boyfriends, girlfriends, relatives, teachers or anyone else.

Call 311 to find confidential sexual health services near you. Many places will see teenagers for free or very low cost.
